

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Importance classes are assigned to electronic messages, by identifying the sender and recipient of an electronic message, determining a relative organizational distance between the sender and the recipient, and assigning the electronic message an importance class, according to the relative organizational distance between the sender and the recipient. The importance setting is further weighted by content criteria and a plurality of rules formed by a machine learning algorithm.